[Charlie] is doing very well. He is amazing at times and a hand full at others. He has really helped Hondo a ton. Hondo wasn't too fond of Charlie at first, and sometimes he still isn't. But now they play together at least once a day... [Charlie] is a fierce protector and can be pretty scary to people and 2 mins later he will be rolling around on his back giving kisses. I'd say he has trained us well.

Here's a Charlie update....He's doing very good. He is learning remarkably fast. He was house trained the first day, and has learned to sit down when asked. He's chasing the cats when they run, but were working on that. Hondo still don't care for him much, but they still live together. We decided to get him a crate due to the cat chasing, so we hope that will help to introduce him to them without him being able to run after them.
