

August 27, 2007

Well, Lucy & Adam are doing just fine. Lucy has settled in beautifully, with just a couple of bumps in the road. Although our yard is fenced, she seems to be able to telescope her body so she can get through our pole gates and run down and visit the gsd Sable next door. After much frustration, we finally solved the problem by attaching short decorative garden fencing to the gate. Now she's the one who's frustrated!

Photos: Lucy and Adam on "their" deck.

August 27, 2007

January 1, 2007

Just wanted to wish you all a very peaceful and happy holiday season! Lucy is doing great - just a slurpy wiggle butt!

May 20, 2006

As you can see, she has more than made herself comfortable here! She is just a joy to have around, and she loves everybody.

October 24, 2005

Lucy is wonderful! She has been the best thing in the world for [our other dog], Adam. They go outside and run and play and flip each other over and are the best of buddies. She has even calmed him down on car rides, which he really does not like. Then, after a romp in the yard, and chewing on sticks, they come in and both take turns climbing onto my lap! She also loves to be brushed and will stand as long as you are willing to continue brushing and has gotten Adam to do the same, which has cut down on the GSD hair bunnies on the floor.

September 5, 2005

Lucy spent the evening watching TV with mom and dad after working things out with Adam (the other family dog), then went into her crate for a well earned night's sleep.

Lucy will be seeing her new vet friends on Tuesday or Wednesday just to get acquainted.

May 20, 2006

