Raven is doing great. She is feeling very much at home and Cooper has finally accepted that she is here to stay (I think he really even likes the idea). She will be starting obedience (good citizenship) class soon. One of her favorite things is our frequent trips to the dog parks with all of our friends.

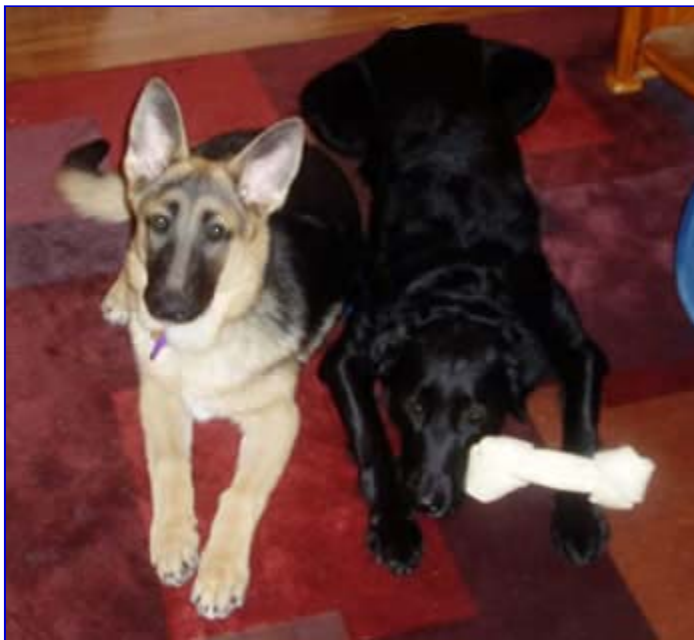

Photos: 1) Raven makes herself at home 2) Raven, hoping Cooper won't notice she's there 3) Raven enjoying a hike with some friends 4) Cooper wonders, what's with all the pictures?

She is such a joy to have. Raven came to us at 5 months already knowing the sit and come commands, as well as pretty much house broken. She is wonderful with everyone (and other dogs) that she has met. She has already made lots of friends at the dog park, which she loves to visit often. Although Cooper (our 4 1/2 year old lab mix) was quite jealous, they have both been adjusting well to each other and I think he actually likes having her around now. Cooper is teaching her the ropes of getting along in the house and I'm hoping he will pick up on the wonderful manners she has while riding in the car. I look forward to many happy years with Raven.
